Among the pleasant sights in Vermont at this season of the year are those afforded by wild deer cavorting about the hills and valleys with almost as much freedom from fear as domestic animals show. This morning Will Holden and Fred Eaton were returning from Berlin pond by automobile when they came upon three deer—two does and a fawn—feeding in the field at the Morrison farm, a mile and a half from this city. The autoists stopped and watched the animals for some minutes. Yesterday automobile parties on the road from Barre to Bradford had a near view of a doe dipping her toes in the river which runs beside the road. The deer looked upon the automobiles with much interest and showed little fear, although quite near the road.

HELD ENJOYABLE REUNION.

Sixty Members of Perry Family Gathered at Plainfield.

Plainfield, June 22.—A reunion of the Perry family was held Saturday at the old homestead in the south district, now owned and occupied by Theron C. Perry. On the place where their ancestor, Elder James Perry, settled back in 1795, 60 persons gathered, many arriving in the morning and the entire party being assembled by early afternoon.

The early hours were spent in greetings and reminiscences and in viewing many family relics which date back a century and more, and shortly after noon a basket luncheon was served in a grove beneath the "old elm." Following the luncheon, swings and other amusements were enjoyed by the children, while the men indulged in an exciting baseball game nearby, much to the amusement of the other members of the party.

Late in the afternoon a program was given at the house, including the following numbers: Selections by the Perry orchestra; "Welcome," Ruth and Miriam Cheney; vocal duet, Edah and Thelma Perry; address of welcome, Theron C. Perry; recitation, Arthur Perry; dialogue, Blanche Corliss and Alice Reed; song, Cheney quartet; reading, Dorothy Perry; singing of "America"; recitation, James Perry; recitation, Elizabeth Perry; song by Beatrice, Marjorie and Grace Perry; reading of deed to homestead, dated February 16, 1795, by William A. Perry, and "Home Sweet Home," by the company.

An organization was formed for a continuance of the reunions, the officers elected being as follows: President, William A. Perry of Barre; vice president, Theron C. Perry of Plainfield; secretary, Mrs. Abbie Corliss of Barre; treasurer, Mrs. T. C. Perry of Plainfield. Although they had sung "Home Sweet Home" several hours previously, most of the party did not disperse until late in the evening. The reunion was most enjoyable.

Given Informal Reception.

An informal reception was held Friday evening in Clan Gordon hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Milne, who recently returned from their wedding trip to Boston and other Massachusetts cities. The grand march was led by the bride and Alex McKinnon, who acted as groomsman at the recent wedding. They were followed by Miss Annie Lillie, a sister of the bride, and Mr. Milne. About 50 couples joined in the march.

The evening was given over to dancing, while an impromptu program was given at intervals during the evening. Bruce's orchestra furnished music for the dancing. Alex McKinnon and John Duguid acted as floor managers.

The program consisted of the following numbers: Song, "It's Nice to Get Up in the Morning," Harry Clark; song, "Down by the Old Mill Stream," Mrs. Williams Innis; reading, "The Dying Soldier," Mrs. William Lillie; song, "Lea Rig," William Innis; song, "Afterwards," Miss Gertrude Dale. All responded to encores.

John Paul, in behalf of the company, presented the couple a beautiful combination china closet and buffet and a handsome dinner set. Mr. Milne responded for himself and wife in a very feeling manner. Refreshments of ice cream and cake and later coffee and sandwiches, soda and other goodies were served by four young girl friends of the bride. Toasts were given by several gentlemen in a hearty manner. Somewhere in the wee sma' hours the merry party, joining hands, sang "Auld Lang Syne." Then, after wishing the happy couple a long and prosperous future, they dispersed, tired, but all declaring they had had a most enjoyable time.
